Businesses, small or large, shouldn't be able to pay workers anything below a livable wage. Why should we subsidize businesses that depend on inadequate wages? If a business's product is good, then this shouldn't be a challenge.

Its called a living wage for a reason - there shouldnt be a debate about the ethics of the law. Anyone who has done the math knows that its impossible to pay rent and bills on the present minimum wage.

Given inflation, unless workers fight they are continually being pushed down. I think well need to revisit these laws again and again to make sure the economy is working for poor families.
